

Reviewing - burden or the most important community service?

- The publication system: necessary balance between giving and taking
- Why do we need reviews?
- When to accept and when to decline a review?
- How well do you have to know the topic to review a paper?
- What can be learned from reviewing? What is the benefit of reviewing a paper?

- What can be learned from reviewing? What is the benefit of reviewing a paper?
- How much time is needed?
- What to put into the review - the reviewer is not writing the paper?
- What makes up a good review - the editors perspective: avoid zero cited papers; what are major and minor points?
- How to structure a good review (for yourself, the authors and the editor?)
